Lost in the jungle of death

My fundamental thanks to those who live all the processes of my life, my family: to my wife Eliana, who always understand and patiently respect my immersion for hours between books, leaving other pleasures for later, for example, the Sunday walk or the summer ice cream. To them my infinite thanks for your understanding and support.

To my parents and to our productive talks and useful life advice, where I often took refuge pleasantly.

To my brothers, of whom I have learned a lot, who unknowingly infected me with the passion for writing

To the work friends who trusted me to carry out the knowledge and translate them into books

To the acquaintances, to their questions, concerns and demands, that they have taught me so much.

To all those entrepreneurs who fundamentally taught me that dreams with action are productive realities.

To my clients, who every day allow me to work in order to elaborate better products

To all of you who invest their time in reading
these ideas, thank you very much for being there,
and welcome

Lost in the jungle of death

Villavicencio Colombia, capital of the department of Meta, is a point of connection and gateway to the Orinoco region, as well as being a center of tourist potential, due to its natural, cultural and traditional wealth. It is the political, commercial and social headquarters of the department, with the fortune of being only 86 kilometers from Bogota, capital of the country; Villavicencio mixes businesses, buildings and commerce, with the vitality and roots of the traditions of the flat people.

Jhon and Raúl were born in the city of Villavicencio Colombia and were lifelong neighbors in the same neighborhood, their parents shared many activities, and you could say they were like a big family. Jhon always stood out in the sports activities and Raúl in the academic activities. But with the passage of time Jhon had changed a lot with respect to Raúl although their friendship seemed to remain firm Raúl tended to move away a little from Jhon by the changes of personality and way of acting of this

It can happen among the best friends. One day they are inseparable and the next they do not even speak. "A friend is supposed to be someone you can trust, someone you can turn to at any time," said Raúl. However, sometimes your best friend can start behaving like your worst enemy.

What I miss good friendship. In the case of Raúl, it all started when he lent his friend Jhon one of his favorite t-shirts. "When he returned it was dirty and had a small tear in the sleeve. But he did not even mention it, as if he was not going to notice. "" Raúl was furious. He thought that he did not respect his [...] things nor did he care about his feelings.

It also hurt him that his friend John commented something that humiliated him. This is what happened to Raul when he told his classmates that he had not yet read the book he had to write a review of and, suddenly, his friend John began to scold him. Raúl recalls: "He embarrassed me in front of my friends, so I got very angry with him. From that moment, everything changed between us ".

And so the distancing occurred when his friend John began to spend time with new colleagues. I tell Raúl and he began to leave me aside. "You could also discover that one of your friends is only interested. "Jhon and I were very good friends,

It could be that Jhon revealed to other information that Raúl considered confidential, for example, Raúl spoke with his friend Jhon about a personal problem that a study partner had. The day after he had told them, Sara brought up the matter right in front of the partner in question. "I never would have imagined that he was so indiscreet! - Says Raúl -. He was furious, divulging something that both had spoken in private. "He felt embarrassed and betrayed," said Raúl. I wonder: 'How can I trust him again?' "

Friendship can be a source of encouragement, especially if it is based on mutual affection, trust and respect. Even so, even the best relationships go through moments of tension "There are partners willing to tear each other apart

Regardless of the cause, feeling that a friend has betrayed you can be a devastating experience.

All human relationships, whether between young people or adults, go through difficulties. After all, "We all stumble many times. If anyone does not stumble in words, this is a perfect man, capable of restraining his entire body. Since us all make mistakes, it is to be expected that, sooner or later, a friend will make or say something hurtful. Maybe I remember some time when it was I who hurt him. "We are imperfect, so we are going to irritate each other from time to time"

In addition to the imperfection, there were other factors involved. Remember, your interests, like those of your friends, change as you grow and develop. Therefore, two people who at one time had much in common can go distancing little by little. Raúl lamented in these terms in relation to his best friend: "We do not call each other very often, and when we finally talk, we no longer agree on almost anything."

Of course, one thing is to distance oneself and another thing is to hurt someone's feelings. Often, the cause is jealousy. For example, Jhon could be jealous of Raul because of his abilities and achievements, "jealousy is rottenness to the bones". In addition, these fuel envy and rivalry. But leaving the cause aside,

Raul-, I look at Jhon and I try to find out if he did it on purpose. And he thought "If you think that what they have said or done is offensive, do not let yourself be carried away by feelings. Rather, be patient and think calmly about the issue. Will the situation improve if you act hastily? After meditating it well, Say what you want in your heart, and be quiet. "And then, maybe you prefer to let 'love covers a multitude of sins'
